Somehow he had acquired the notion that the house over which he has the distinguished honor to preside -and we wish we could work the compliment both ways-was the whole

About the time Mr. Hull was making his announcement, the senate was also voting for a United States senator. Of course, if the senate had known that the house was attending to this important work all by itself, it would have omitted the duty of voting altogether. Verily the speaker has a most exalted notion of the prerogatives and powers of the house of representatives. and incidentally of himself.

As a matter of fact, Apostle Smoot was not even a senator-elect at the cicse of Tuesday's voting. He could not be a senator-elect until the legislature had convened in joint assembly and announced officially the result of the separate ballot. The law specifically provides that a joint session must patch says brigands held up a mul be held and the vote canvassed. THE COLORADO SITUATION.

STRIKING EXAMPLE of the im-A pudent unfairness to which blind partisanship semetimes leads a party organ, was furnished by The Herald's morning contemporary yesterday morning. Commenting on the Colorado senatorial situation, it said:

"Things look anarchistic in Colorado. The senate leads in the unconstitutional and unlawful work. It pretends to oust Republicans without regard for right, and bars out from the senate clined to pe chamber members that are entitled to any longer. their seats, admitting instead men who have not the least claim of right there-

The entire paragraph is absolutely and maliciously untrue. An attempt is made to convey the impression that the Colorado Democratico senators have been guilty of lawlessness and anarchy.
